REFORMS

Dear friends,
I'm very, very glad and very proud that you have allowed me to defend the sacred interests of those who go to school...

First, I'll say this: Why are we "uneducated" about a lot of useless things?... For example, what does it matter to know that Asdrubal died in...
in... anyway, to know when he died?...
We demand that instead, we learn to swim and see an railway timetable...

Moreover, when we are taught History, it tells us nothing! All these old men who died on impossible to remember dates, it seems like they never existed!... Why not use movies to explain those things? I've seen "The Miracle of the Wolves" at the movies, and I retained the entire history of that time, except the dates...

History is like that: we're forced to memorize dates, names and cities...
There's nothing else to do but memorize.
And it's those who have a good memory that always get first place on exams...
It's a shame!...

First of all, exams take away friends.
We're not always friends. When there's an exam, it's all over, we're not friends anymore, we're enemies. Yet the teachers always tell us we should be friends... Down with exams!...

And also, the teachers, they punish too much. We don't want more teachers who punish... 'cause when you do something wrong in class and you know you'll be punished, you tell a lie, so as not to be punished... If we aren't punished, we'll never lie to you!...

But still, even if they don't punish, or not much, there are teachers who aren't pleasant... There are those who always look like they've swallowed their umbrellas!... We love teachers who are nice and laugh with us! And we don't want the others anymore!

Finally, you'll all agree with me that we have too much work. We always have homework to do, lessons to be learned and when it's exam time, you must study, study, and study again. We don't even have time to play! Are we going to tolerate this any longer?...

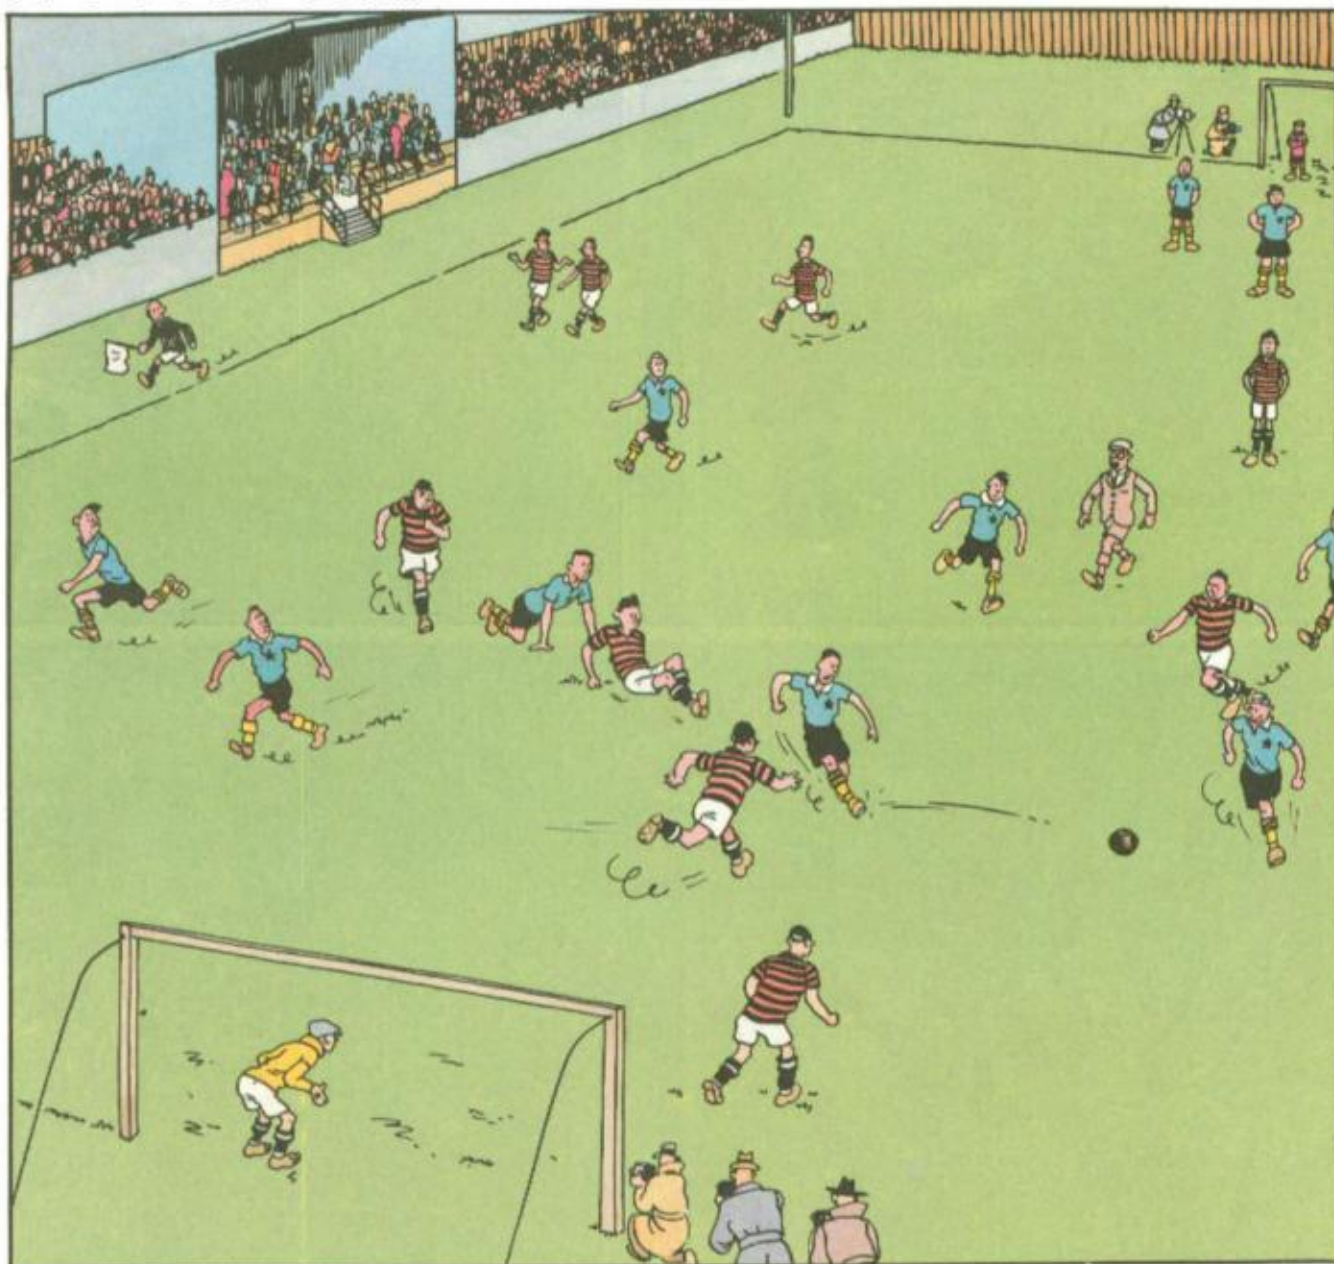

Comrades, join with me against the overworking school!!!

Whew! It's heavy!...

I'll never be able to throw this into the center!... Unless...
